It is said than the oil districts of Pennsylvania are solid for Quay. "Birds of a feather" &c. Quay is an oily sort a fellow himself and they naturally run to him.

With swarms of grass hoppers in Kansas, chinch bugs in Tennessee, hay bugs in Pennsylvania, and goldbugs scattered around sort o' promiscuously, there is always so much to vex the soul of the horny handed agriculturist.

Notwithstanding the numerous announcements by Mrs. Lease that her center name is not Ellen but Elizabeth, many editors still persist in calling her Ellen. Some of them, judging from the ardor of her remarks sometimes, perhaps think her name should be Ellen Blazes.

The Louisville Courier-Journal says gold over production is impossible. And so is silver over production. The world has use for all of these metals that may be dug from the earth, that is provided it recognizes both of them as money. They say there is over production of silver. Demonetize gold and there would soon be over production of that, too.

It is said that in New York city, since the new Sunday law went into effect, the man who rarely thinks of ordering a dinner at the restaurants during the week days for less than 50 cents, can go into a hotel on Sunday and be content with a five cent meal and a drink thrown in. It is thrown in by the hotel man and also by the man who eats the five cent meal.

The Charleston News and Courier, which is not only one of the best papers in the South but in the country, issued its edition of the 10th inst. on its new perfecting Hoe press, the latest and most complete thing in the way of a printing press, which with lightning speed takes the paper in an endless roll and turns it out printed, cut, folded and ready for the mailing machines. With this press and the typesetting machines, with which the News and Courier was already supplied, it is equipped for business.

Spain announces that the bottom is nearly knocked out of the Cuban fracas, and shows that she has no doubt of this by sending 16,000 men, and says she will send 60,000 more when the weather becomes cooler. It is too hot for them now, and the pesky Cubans, who don't seem to mind the weather, are making it hotter.

President Harrison is quoted as saying that he never wants a shotgun so bad as when he sees a woman riding a bicycle and chewing gum. Somebody should supply him with a shotgun, a breech loader, and encourage him to take the warpath against the gum chewer on wheels.

A Spanish inventor has constructed a nickel-in-the-slot machine which will turn out a photograph, weigh the person and regale him with a tune simultaneously. If he had added a schooner of beer and a free lunch, that machine would make a clean sweep.

Why Not a Knitting Mill?

The knitting mill at Cheraw, S. C., is making money fast. The mill at Newport News, Va., it is said, "has so many orders on hand that it cannot fill them for months to come." It employs eighty hands.

Why will not a knitting mill pay as well in Wilmington as in Cheraw or Newport News? The capital required is comparatively small, and it could be made up readily on the instalment plan. It would be a good thing for Wilmington to have a knitting mill employing one hundred people.

Death of Mr. W. O. Creasy.

The sad intelligence reached here from Charlotte, N. C., yesterday morning, of the death of Mr. W. O. Creasy, who is the grandfather of Messrs. W. M. Creasy and A. H. BASE BALL.

Wilmington vs. Laurinburg—Score 12 to 0 in Favor of Wilmington.

The Wilmington team crossed bats again yesterday with the Laurinburg team. A large number of spectators went to the Hammocks to witness the game. The home boys played exceptionally good ball throughout. Wilmington's pitcher, Wilson, was too much for the visitors, therefore the Laurinburg boys scored a goose egg in every inning. Mr. Albert Prempert was umpire, and Mr. Oscar Kennedy scorer. The game was played in one hour and forty minutes. The following is a tabulated report of the game:

To-day's game will be the final one and the Laurinburg team has been strengthened by three new players, and it is expected to be "nip and tuck" throughout. It will be called at 3 o'clock at Hilton.

The following are the players and position for to-day on the Wilmington team, Zellars, catch; Wilson, pitch; Furlong, first base; Watson, second base; Belden, short stop; Graham, third base; Rankin, left field; Williams, centre field; Oldham, right field.

An Interesting Collection of Samples of Work Done in Night Schools on Exhibition Next Week.

There will be on public exhibition at the Y. M. C. A. building in this city next week an interesting and unique collection of samples of work done in night schools in America. As is well known, the Wilmington Y. M. C. A. has run a school in connection with its work during the last two winters. But the work here has been very small compared with some Associations, which, having better opportunities, have not only classes in "the three R's." but in the languages, sciences and trades as well.

The International Committee has collected many of the best samples done in these schools and is exhibiting them in Southern Associations with a view to interest the public in this line of work. The secretary in charge of the exhibit, Mr. Geo. B. Hodge, of New York, has written that he will be in Wilmington next Monday and Tuesday. The public will be invited to call at the building either Monday afternoon or night or during Tuesday, and examine the samples, there being no charge or collection of any kind.

The exhibit embraces samples of carpenter, iron, electric and machine work, moulding, pattern-making, wood carving, architectural, mechanical and free hand drawing, stenography, type-writing, book-keeping, etc. etc. It will well repay a visit.

The Fayetteville Excursionists.

About seven hundred excursionists arrived here yesterday morning over the C. F. & Y. V. Railroad from Fayetteville and along the line of road. It was given under the auspices of the First Baptist Church of Fayetteville. The steamer Wilmington met them at the depot and carried about five hundred down to Carolina Beach. The others spent their time in the city and at Ocean View.

The entire party report a very pleasant day and left at 7 o'clock for their homes much pleased with their visit.

The committee in charge of the excursion and who made everything so pleasant for those who attended were Messrs. W. H. Powell, June Vann, Mr. Oats and Capt. A. Garrason,

Preparing for the State Firemen's Tournament.

The Adrian Steam Fire Engine company are making big preparations to enter the State Firemen's tournament, which will be held in Newbern on the 5th, 6th and 7th of next month. Schnibben have been elected delegates to represent the Howard Relief company at the State Fireman's Association meeting there, with Messrs. T. Donlan and John Haar as alternates.

Wilmington Gun Club.

At a meeting of the Gun Club held last evening it was decided to divide the regular Friday afternoon shoot into two events, one of fifteen targets, known traps, unknown angles, and another of ten targets, to be shot under expert rules; the winner in first event to be awarded the street railway pass, winner of second event to wear the silver medal, and the shooter making the highest percentage in the two events to wear the gold medal. Shooting will begin this afternoon promptly at 5 o'clock.

THE ATLANTA EXPOSITION.

Meeting of Business Men to Take Action to Have Wilmington Represented—Committee Appointed to Secure Appropriations From County and City Authorities for the Purpose.

A meeting of our business men was held yesterday at the Produce Exchange in regard to having an exhibit from Wilmington at the Atlanta Exposition.

Mr. Oscar Pearsall, Vice-President of the Exchange, called the meeting to order and, after explaining its object in a few well chosen remarks, called Col. F. W. Kerchner to the chair and asked Capt. J. C. Morrison to act as secretary.

Mr. John T. Patrick, agent for the Seaboard Line Railroad, being present, was called, and explained the plans and purposes of his road with reference to the exhibit. The Seaboard road wishes to have all of the sections through which it passes thoroughly advertised, and especially the cities and towns.

Wilmington should be represented in the agricultural department of this great exhibit with those things which she manufactures and exports, such as cotton, rice, lumber, vegetables, fertilizers, etc.

Mr. Patrick stated that the Seaboard road would have printed for gratuitous distribution 1,000,000 copies of pamphlets, advertising the sections through which it penetrates, and that Wilmington could have all the advertising space she might wish in this pamphlet by paying a nominal sum for the same, as this advertisement was not gotten up for the purpose of making money, but merely to show to advantage the sections represented at the Exposition.

At the conclusion of Mr. Patrick's remarks, Mr. J. C. Stevenson moved that the city and the county each be asked to contribute $250 to aid in making an exhibit, Mr. Oscar Pearsall seconded the motion. Mr. D L. Gore thought the amount too large and that less would suffice. Mr. T. D. Meares thought the amount asked for by Mr. Stevenson sufficiently small. He thought that Wilmington should get up a pamphlet of her own and have a pretty girl to hand them out at the Exposition. Mr. Stevenson remarked that Wilmington should also furnish the pretty girl. Mr. Stevenson's motion was then put by the chairman and unanimously carried.

Capt. J. C. Morrison moved that a committee of three be appointed by the chair to meet the Board of Aldermen and County Commissioners and place before them the request for the donations mentioned. The motion was unanimously passed. The chair appointed Capt. W. R. Kenan, Capt. J. C. Morrison and Mr. Oscar Pearsall as members of that committee.

Mr. T. D. Meares thought the newspapers of the city should be encouraged to get out special editions advertising the city's possible and probable advantages to be derived from an exhibit of this kind.

Commander Winslow, of the naval battalion, who had recently returned from Atlanta, was called on for an expression of opinion touching the exhibit, and gave a very interesting talk for about ten minutes. Capt. Morrison, also of the committee just returned from Atlanta, addressed the meeting. Several members of the committee mentioned were present and took much interest in the proceedings.

The Fayetteville Independent Light Infantry.

The Fayetteville Independent Light Infantry, of Fayetteville, N. C., the oldest military organization in the State, will celebrate its 102nd anniversary on 23rd of August by a grand excursion to this city.

Mr. James G. Hollingsworth was in the city yesterday making arrangements for this organization to go into camp for ten days at one of our popular summer resorts. He will lay the matter before the Company when he returns, at which time they will decide which place is preferable. Wilmington and especially its honorary members will welcome them back again.

Assigned to the Colfax Temporarily.

Two cadets have been sent by the Navy Department at Washington, D. C., to the revenue cutter Colfax at this station. They are Cadets F. C. Billard and B. F. Chiswell, who have done service on the school ship Chase lying at New Bedford, Mass. They were transferred or assigned to this station to receive instructions in practical seamanship on the Colfax. Cadets Billard and Chiswell are now with the two cleverest officers in the service, Captain Smythe and Lieut. Jno. C. Cantwell.

FROM WELDON.

Opening of Bids for Erection of Cotton Mill—Knitting Mill Being Built.

WELDON, N. C., July 11,

MR. EDITOR—The bids for the construction of a big cotton mill at Roanoke Rapids near here were opened here Tuesday and the contract awarded to W. A. Chesterman & Co., of Richmond. The bids ranged from $50,000 to $80,000.

A big knitting mill is being erected there now by Brown & Garner, of Washington, D. C.

The crops in this section are looking much better than they did a few days ago.

P. S. The mill referred to is to be 254 x106 and four stories high.

A Bicycle Smashed by a Runaway Horse.

Mr. A. M. Waddell, Jr., had the misfortune yesterday afternoon of having his bicycle smashed, which he had left leaning against the sidewalk in front of Mr. J. C. Mund's drug store, on Front street, by a horse and dray running into it. The horse belonged to Icum Sweat, colored, and became frightened while standing at the corner of Princess and Water streets and ran away.

MAYOR MEETS MAYOR.

WILMINGTON'S CHIEF EXECUTIVE AND MAYOR KING TALK OVER THE EXPOSITION.

The Tar Heelers Take Atlanta—Military Men Making Preparations for Bringing Down All Their Forces to the Exposition.

[Atlanta Constitution.]

Wilmington's jolly mayor, whom the boys call "Fish," but whose card bears the very dignified inscription "Mr. S. H. Fishblate, Mayor Wilmington, N. C.," stretched out his hand yesterday morning and squeezed the fingers of Mayor Porter King right heartily.

Atlanta's mayor was glad to meet the dignitary from the old Tar Heel State. The countenance of the Wilmington executive crinkled with smiles at the pleasing welcome, and he called in all the boys for an introduction.

"This is Colonel J. F. Bruton, Colonel of the Second Regiment State Guard," said Mayor Fishblate, "and this is Col. F. Winslow, Commandant of the North Carolina Battalion Naval Reserves, and this is Colonel W. J. Woodward, Commander of the Uniform Knights of Pythias of our city."

In this way the Mayor went on down the line, and for quite a while Mayor King was kept busy repeating military titles and shaking hands.

VISITED THE GROUNDS

The delegation from North Carolina arrived in Atlanta at 8 o'clock yesterday morning and were driven at once to the Aragon, where rooms had been ordered. They were in charge of Mr. Thomas D. Meares, Agent of the Seaboard Air Line, which had furnished a private car and other conveniences for the party.

Just after they had breakfasted they were taken in charge by Chief Walter G. Cooper, with several other Exposition officials, and driven to the grounds.

Here they spent an hour examining the various buildings and looking over the place for the purpose of fixing a camping spot. The military men of the Tar Heel State are coming. They say that when they strike Atlanta Sherman's raid will be eclipsed. They will storm the State with over 2,000 men, of the best families in North Carolina.

What they want to get is a large camping ground, where the companies can remain for several days. As yet, this plan has not been definitely arranged, but it is favorable to the Exposition officers, who will make provision for the camp.

A PICTURESQUE RESERVE.

The Naval Reserves of North Carolina is one of the strongest organizations of its kind in the United States. It numbers a force of 350 men. All of these are trained soldiers, who have made cruises to far ports. At present the Reserves have at their disposal the Monitor, turned over by the Government for that purpose. They are preparing for a trip to the Bermudas.

"It is our purpose," said Mr. J. C. Morrison, Lieutenant of the Reserves of Wilmington, "to bring to Atlanta our whole corps. All of the men have uniforms of white, and they make a pretty sight when brought out on parade. We are going to bring the whole of North Carolina here with us. Our present trip is made merely with the idea of prospecting. We came to see if the encampment can be brought here."

A GOOD DELEGATION.

The North Carolina men are all fine looking fellows—straight shouldered, tall and handsome, especially Mayor Fishblate.

Following is the full delegation:

J. F. Bruton, colonel Second regiment, North Carolina State Guard.

Walker Taylor, lieutenant colonel Second regiment, North Carolina State Guard.

W. E. Warren, adjutant Second regiment, North Carolina State Guard.

W. H. Northrop, captain Second regiment, North Carolina State Guard.

F. Winslow, commander North Carolina battalion, Naval Reserves.

George L. Morton, Lieutenant Commander North Carolina battalion, Naval Reserves.

J. C. Morrison, Lieutenant, Wilmington division, Naval Reserves.

Mason Burr, Messenger, Wilmington division, Naval Reserves.

W. J. Woodward, Colonel and Aide-de-Camp, Uniform Rank Knights of Pythias.

W. F. Robertson, Sir Knight Herald, Uniform Rank Knights of Pythias.

S. H. Fishblate, Mayor city of Wilmington.

Martin Newman, Chief Fire Department, Wilmington.

Thomas D. Meares, Captain Uniform Rank Knights of Pythias, and Wilmington agent Seaboard Air Line.

LEFT LAST NIGHT.

The Tar Heels pulled out on their special car last night at 7:30 o'clock.

'Wish we could stay longer,' said Mayor Fishblate, 'but this is a hurried trip made for the purpose of looking over the grounds and seeing just what arrangements could be made in the way of an encampment.'

'All of us go away wonderfully impressed with the magnitude of the work, and we will come back later on to make our plans more definite.'

"All of our military forces, as well as the civilians, are preparing to come. The Knights of Pythias are also coming in force. I expect that all the members of that order will be here."

Will Make a Bigger Racket.

The Wilmington correspondent of the Southport Leader writes as follows:

"Among those who have purchased the stock of Morris Bear & Bros., is the hustling firm of Braddy & Gaylord, the Racket Store men. These men have rented the building occupied by the Bears, and will in a few weeks move their entire stock into it. It cannot be doubted that equal success will follow Braddy & Gaylord in the place where the Bear Bros. have done so well, for they are both pushing young men, and have early recognized the fact that to catch the trade the public must know all about what they have to sell and the price of the articles."

A Warning to Wheelmen.

A telegram from Louisville, Ky., says: "Dr. Edward R. Palmer, one of the most prominent physicians of this city, and well-known throughout the Southern States, was killed on the Southern Boulevard last night while riding his bicycle, in a collision with another wheelman, William R. Colston. Both parties were thrown to the ground, but Mr. Colston was quickly revived. Dr. Palmer, however, could not be revived, and was removed to the Norton Infirmary, where he died at an early hour this morning, without having regained consciousness."

THE CAROLINA MUTUAL
Fire Insurance Company,
of Charlotte, N. C.

The CAROLINA MUTUAL is a strong NORTH CAROLINA Company. It is, however, a stock company, and issues absolutely non-participating and non-assessable policies. Its mutual feature consists in a charter provision, that one-third of its directors must be POLICY-HOLDERS who are NOT stockholders elected by the POLICY-HOLDERS; this is a very strong point, the policy-holders who have great interests at stake, have a share in the management of the Company, and will always know its condition. Better than this, the CAROLINA MUTUAL deposits all premiums received at this agency to their credit with the WILMINGTON SAVINGS AND TRUST COMPANY. This makes it practically a local company. The directors of the company are:

P. M. BROWN,
Of Brown, Weddington & Co., Wholesale Hardware.
E. B. SPRINGS,
Of E. B. Springs & Co., Fertilizers and Wagons.
M. P. PEGRAM,
Cash'r First Nat'l Bank of Charlotte.
B. D. HEATH,
Of Heath Brothers, Bankers.
SAM'L E. WHITE,
President Fort Mill Man'f'g Co.
A. C. SUMMERVILLE,
Lumber and Real Estate.
J. T. ANTHONY,
Wholesale Provisions and Grain.
JOHN W. MILLER,
Real Estate and Cotton Broker.
HERIOT CLARKSON,
Of Clarkson & Duls, Att'ys-at-Law.

These gentlemen stand among the wealthiest and most successful business men of North Carolina, and their names are a guarantee of the Company's honesty, conservatism and success. We heartily recommend the Company to the property owners of Wilmington. We also represent other good companies, and do a general insurance business. Come to see us.

FRIDAY MORNING, JULY 12, 1895

SHOWING THEIR HANDS.

In the early stages of the free silver agitation the so-called 'sound money" advocates professed to be bimetallists, not only friendly to the joint use of silver with gold, but anxious for it. They opposed, they said, free coinage not from hostility to silver, but because free coinage would result in such an excess of silver as to depreciate it, drive gold out of circulation, and thus defeat bimetallism by making silver the only metal money. This was the strongest argument they had to justify their position, and this argument took with a good many who were really friendly to silver, but were persuaded that more silver meant less gold, and much more silver no gold at all.

As far as these contenders were honest in their contention and really believed what they said, that is that free coinage—by which they mean any more coinage—would result in silver monometallism, we must respect them. but it is becoming daily more and more apparent that with some of them, at least, this professed friendliness to bimetallism was a mere sham, and that they are bimetallists only on impossible conditions. Encouraged by what they construe as a "reaction" or "subsidence of the silver wave," a recovery from the "silver craze," &c., they have become emboldened to throw off the bimetallic disguise, to show their hands and appear in their true character as gold monometallists pure and simple

Men who posed a few months ago as bimetallists now openly declare that bimetallism is an impossibility and pronounce the 'double standard' a contradictory absurdity that they can't understand, although the world has had the double standard for thousands of years, and this country had it until John Sherman and his gang of gold monometallists, after five years trying, succeeded in establishing the gold standard in 1873, the same gold standard for which they are now contending, some of them boldly and candidly, others dishonestly and sneakingly.

It is the bolder, however, who assumes to lead and give directions to the so-called "sound money" movement, and those of them who proclaim for the single gold standard while posing and pretending to speak as Democrats utterly ignore the bimetallic plank in the platform of 1892, and make a platform of their own with a monometallic plank. That platform declared unequivocally for the use of both gold and silver in such a ratio as would maintain the parity between them and the equal purchasing and debt paying power of all the money of the United States. There was no suggestion of a single standard in it, but on the contrary it was contended then and since and all the time until the gold monometallist came to the front since the present agitation began, that it was the policy and intent of the Democrat party to protect silver and labor for its largest possible use as money, first by international agreement, if that were obtainable, and in the event of the failure of that "by such legislation as would maintain the parity" between our different kinds of money. When they contend for the sole gold standard now they kick this platform aside as so much rotten timber and make one upon the like of which no Democrat ever stood, and no true Democrat ever will. There is no sentence, word or syllable in the platform of 1892 which by the most violent distortion of language can be construed as endorsing gold monometallism or any other monometallism, and nothing was further from the thoughts of the men who framed it as a compromise between the extreme silver advocates and those who believed in a limited coinage of silver. It was contended by the framers of that platform that it meant the continued use and coinage of silver, and the demand was made for the repeal of the Sherman "cowardly makeshift" because it was a cheat by which silver was bought and piled up in the Treasury vaults and not coined, the Government thus contributing by law and usage to make silver a mere commercial commodity instead of a money metal.

The STAR has taken its position in opposition to gold monometallism and in favor of limited coinage and State banks, because that is in accordance with what it believes to be the meaning and the spirit of the declaration of 1892, when the Democratic party through its accredited representatives pronounced for the use of both metals, without discrimination against either, and for the repeal of the arbitrary and unconstitutional tax on the issue of State banks. The Democrat who believes that his party was honest then, and supported it on that platform because he believed it was honest, if he is honest now will support it on the same platform, which, honestly interpreted, commits the party to the coinage of silver, either on international agreement, or in the absence of that, on such legislation as will maintain the parity between our different kinds of money; but no honest, consistent Democrat can, without utterly ignoring that platform, contend for the single gold standard.

MINOR MENTION.

The negroes who were enticed to go from Alabama and Georgia last winter, into the State of Durango, Mexico, jumped from an imaginary frying pan into the fire, for from all reports they are having a hard time. To ascertain what foundation there might be for the reports sent out as to their condition, a Dr. Trollinger, a leading physician of San Antonio, Texas, was detailed a month ago to make an investigation, and has returned and reported. He found eight hundred negroes in the colony "walled in," as he expresses it, and "closely guarded." Fully one-half of them were suffering from a disease resembling malaria, from which many have died. The promoters of the colony are clearing 52,000 acres of land for agricultural purposes, the work being done by the negroes. Other accounts report the negroes to be in a condition of absolute slavery, the difference being that they enjoy neither the kindness, consideration nor protection in health or sickness that the slave would. Many have escaped after going through much hardship, and many others have been pursued and shot down while attempting to escape, the rule being for the Mexicans to pursue and shoot them on sight. The Tuscaloosa, Ala., Times, of recent date publishes a letter from El Paso, Texas, written by one of the negroes who left that town and succeeded in escaping. He says that seven weeks before he wrote that letter he was one of a party of fifty who fled from the colony. The following day they were 'overtaken by Mexicans and all but nine were shot down like dogs.' These succeeded in secreting themselves in the bushes. Some of the escaped were children who died of thirst, and the others suffered from both hunger and thirst before they reached a place of safety. And yet the colonization fever runs high among the negroes, and a glib tongued agent who started out among them now in the very section from which these "colonists" went to Durango, could get a big "colony" to go almost anywhere, and this is not because they suffer where they are but because they believe almost anything that is told them, and like to move.

The Republican politicians have been planning, and hope to make the tariff the principal issue in the campaign of 1896, but from the present indications, with the revival in business, the increase in our industrial establishments, and the increase in the wages of workmen, there will be very little fighting ground on the tariff and very little encouragement for the Republicans to make a campaign on that. The fact is that the predictions of the Democrats as to the happy results of tariff reduction are being confirmed even beyond their expectations. This is shown not by partisan statements, but by the record of industrial growth and prosperity as kept by the non-partisan trade journals, whose business it is to keep up with the industrial movement and deal with facts and figures. One of these, The American Wool and Cotton Reporter, publishes in its issue of the 4th instant the following statement of the increase of textile establishments in the first six months of this year, as compared with the first and second six months of 1894:

	First Six Months 1895.	First Six Months 1894.	Second Six Months 1894.
Woolen	38	17	28
Cotton	73	43	58
Knitting	57	31	38
Silk	16	13	8
Miscellaneous	17	12	15
Total	201	116	147

These figures kept up for the remainder of the year would give 402, against 263 for 1894, 279 for 1893 and 356 for 1892, not a bad showing of industrial activity under a tariff, which, according to the Republican prophets, was going to destroy the manufacturing industries of this country. Commenting on this statement the Reporter says: "That the clouds of depression have been giving way and a clear sky of prosperity developing in textile lines during the past six months, no fair-minded person can seriously doubt, after reviewing the imposing list of new mill enterprises launched since the first of the year." What kind of an argument is the calamity howler and the McKinleyite going to present against facts and figures like these?

The Republican State Convention of Iowa, which was held Wednesday, followed the Republican convention of Ohio, by re-affirming the platform of 1892 and thus straddling on the financial question. This is significant, for Iowa, like Ohio, has a "favorite son" whom she proposes to boost for the Presidency, and the presumption is that that favorite son—Senator Allison—had a good deal to do with smothering the financial question in that convention. This is, doubtless, the course that will be pursued in all the Republican conventions outside of the silver States, for it is the programme to keep the financial question in the background as long as possible and to bury it if they possibly can. It will be argued when the national convention meets and the silver men move for the further recognition of silver that the mass of Republicans do not want that and as a proof of this they will cite the action of the State conventions which refused to take up the silver question and declared for the platform of 1892. That's the way they propose to freeze the silver men out, if they can, and pose as the friends of bimetallism. It remains to be seen if the free silver men of the West will be caught in that trap.

CURRENT COMMENT.

—— Uncle Horace Boies is still explaining his latest bullion circular. Uncle Horace intends to have a record between now and 1896 which will make him a compromise candidate if one is called.—St. Louis Republic, Dem.

—— Americans the world over—without regard for partisan bias—will rejoice that there is probability of the growing generation's enjoying in the years to come, through association with the latest addition to the President's family, those qualities, to be renewed in her daughters, which have given to Mrs. Cleveland genuine popularity and the unfeigned esteem of the nation.—Washington Star, Ind.

——People are not surprised that the densely ignorant classes in the interior of China should go wild over religious differences and mob Christian missionaries, but it is reasonable to expect something better in this civilized country. Yet the riot in Boston and the riot in Indiana, both having religious prejudices at bottom, are no less barbaric. —New York Commercial Advertiser, Rep.

SPIRITS TURPENTINE.

— Rockingham Rocket: Mrs. Lucy McDonald, aged 73 years, died suddenly at her home in Wolf Pit township on Monday morning last. She was sitting at the table at breakfast, apparently in her usual health, when suddenly her head dropped down and she expired in a few moments.

— Greensboro Patriot: A company has been organized with $300,000 capital to utilize the water power at Mayo Rapids, near Madison. Messrs. Fries, of Salem, Ruffin, of Rocky Mount, and a capitalist from Roanoke, Va., are the principal stockholders. A mammoth cotton mill will be built and it will be run by the water power there. Work will be begun very shortly.

—Raleigh Visitor: A sexless child was born this week in the eastern part of this city. It also has a divided spine. It is yet alive.—— The name of the coal mines at Egypt, now changed to Cummock mines, Cummock, is a famous coal mining district in Scotland. —— The news to-day from little Willie Upchurch, who was bitten yesterday by a highland moccasin, is that he is nearly out of danger. The snake which bit him six times was one of the largest size. It was in the yard at Mr. John W. Upchurch's place four miles from here, and the boy turned over a tub which caught the snake by the tail. The angry reptile then bit him. The family gave him two ounces of brandy and put soda on the bites, which were on the feet and legs. The boy is not strong and his condition at one time was serious. Suppuration well be considerable. His legs and feet are badly swollen. The snake was killed.

— Clinton Democrat. The man who thinks Sampson can't grow fine tobacco will find out that he was mistaken if he will go out to Mr. J. H. Royal's farm. Mr. Royal has a ten acre field of perhaps as fine tobacco as anybody has. —— Mary Emma Moore, a young colored woman, was before Mayor Holliday Monday for slapping her grandmother Nellie Moore, aged 104. Mary Emma submitted and was relieved of $3.85 for the privilege of slapping a centenarian. —— Miss Emma Matthis ships considerable quantities of huckleberries. She has a local reputation as a writer of verse, and in many crates of berries she sends an original poem on the virtues of Sampson blues, which ought to make her berries bring fancy prices, if the busy, prosy Yankees have time to read poetry.—— Mr. A. F. Johnson recently made a fortune on his crop of early corn. Mr. H. E. Faison has done the same thing on his crop of onions. He shipped two bushels of onions to a Richmond produce house, the same to which Mr. Johnson shipped his corn, and received as net returns five cents in postage stamps.

TWINKLINGS.

— "What sort of a girl is she?"

"Oh, she is a miss with a mission."

"Ah?"

"And her mission is seeking a man with a mansion."—Sketch.

— "I have come to ask you for your daughter's hand, Mr. Herrick," said young Waller nervously.

"Oh, well, you can't have it," said Herrick. "I'm not doling out my daughter on the installment plan. When you feel that you can support the whole girl, you may call again."—Harper's Bazar.

— He blushed a fiery red; her heart went pit-a-pat; she gently hung her head and looked down on the mat. He trembled in his speech; he rose from where he sat and shouted with a screech: "You're sitting on my hat!"—Tid-Bits.

— A Lover's Admiration.—My dear fellow, said one foreign nobleman to another, I have just met your American fiancee. I want to congratulate you. You have a prize.

Yes, was the complacent reply, and the beauty of it is that she's a cash one.—Washington Star.

DELIRIOUS WITH COLOR.

Ravages of the Carpenter and House Painter In the Bronx Valley.

The Bronx valley from Williamsbridge to Mount Vernon is an incoherency in all the colors of the spectrum. The carpenter architect was let loose upon that part of the valley some years ago, and he has had his will of its pastoral beauty ever since. To make matters worse, he soon joined to himself the painter, and the valley is now delirious with color. Not only is each house of a different color from its neighbor, but each usually has from four to ten different colors of its own. There was a time not long ago when that portion of the Bronx valley was mostly green. Now the eye, caught with the glaring colors laid by man, refuses to take note of the yet undisturbed greenery of nature. The house of the old French farmer right in the middle of the valley, long hideous with enormous patent medicine signs in black and yellow, is beautiful compared with the chromatic monstrosities that now perch upon the neighboring heights.

When the skeleton of a new house begins to rise in those parts, there are slowly outlined to the eyes of the looker on the leading features of the architectural outrage about to be perpetrated. Before the roof is reached the original quadrangle has been distorted by excrescences of many sizes and shapes, gables where no gables should be, bird box bay windows stuck on cornerwise, loggias and battlemented towers. Then a gewgaw piazza is added, and as the work progresses gingerbread cornices make their appearance. When the whole is done, the building at no point save perhaps the foundation or the roof presents to view a single unbroken right line ten feet in length. The weary eye in vain seeks a resting place, and the structure is without dignity or repose.

When the carpenter has done his worst, the painter comes to add new terrors to the scene. After all the canons of form have been outraged the principles of chromatic harmony are violated. It is no uncommon thing to see a house dark red in the main, with green shutters, yellow cornice moldings and a piazza in three or four other colors. When a house that has escaped the worst horrors of form and color comes now and then to be enlarged, the addition invariably receives a color at war with every other on the original structure. Travelers by fast express trains on the New Haven road see the valley as a dim landscape bedizened with crude rainbows.

It is not easy to discover the origin of this style of architecture and decoration, but as it prevails largely throughout the New York suburbs it was doubtless invented as the proper thing for semirural regions. Hundreds of houses built and decorated in this fashion are the work of contractors or land boomers who believe that they have discovered the thing that suits suburban taste, and apparently the presence of so many such buildings has created a demand for the like or at least blinded the inhabitants to the enormity of the thing. A man of taste who built in the Bronx region two or three simple and pretty cottages painted in quiet colors found difficulty in renting them, and neighbors hard by, uninfluenced by his examples of good taste, built for themselves high shouldered structures with gables, loggias and impossible bay windows, and decorated them with the wealth of color that marks most other dwellings in the valley. The prevailing taste has infected even the French settlement at Williamsbridge, and the delightful little Roedinger cottage, the prettiest place in the village, is threatened with destruction in order that a street may be extended, while one of the summer resorts at the riverside has recently taken on half a dozen colors that transform it from rural simplicity to garish vulgarity. Meanwhile the unrestrained painter continues his ravages, and every new house erected takes on another combination of irreconcilable colors.—New York Sun.

Beaconsfield, the Jew.

From his proud loyalty to the Hebrew race he never for a moment swerved. For 18 centuries that race has been slowly taking possession of the civilized world. Through the martyrdom of individual souls Jewish morality has changed the face of the globe. The conduct of the European peoples—modern civilization, as it is called—is their work, while in art, in music and in letters they have more than held their own. Power, of an overt and conspicuous kind, has, however, for 18 centuries been denied to men of their blood. Disraeli broke the spell.

In July, 1878, in the capital of the greatest military nation of our time, among the heroes and statesmen who had created imperial Germany, among the representatives of the civilized nations of Europe congregated there to check Russia in her victorious career and maintain the equal balance of European authority, the most observed and conspicuous personage was not Bismarck nor Moltke nor Andrassy nor any prince nor emperor of them all, but the slim and still youthful figure that with pale and haggard face and slow step, leaning on the arm of his private secretary, was seen day by day to cross the square from the kaiserhof to the congress, the representative of the queen of Great Britain and Ireland and empress of India—the figure of Lord Beaconsfield, the Jew.—Hon. Reginald B. Brett in Nineteenth Century.

The Last English Decapitation.

The last occasion of decapitation for high treason in England was, I fancy, that of Thistlewood and his four companions for the Cato street conspiracy. I take the following from Thornbury's "Old Stories Retold:"

"Exactly a quarter of an hour after the last man was hung the order was given to cut the bodies down. The heads were then haggled off with brutal clumsiness with a surgeon's knife. The mob expressed loudly their horror and disgust, more especially when the turnkey who exhibited the heads dropped that of Brunt. 'Hallo, butter fingers!' shouted a rough voice from the rolling crowd below. The day had gone by for such useless brutality."

This horrible scene was enacted on May 1, 1820.—Notes and Queries.

A Sign of Contempt.

When Panurge met the Englishman, we are told that he, Panurge—perhaps out of delicate compliment to our insular manners and customs—"suddenly lifted up in the air his right hand and put the thumb thereof into the nostril of the same side, holding his four fingers straight out and closed orderly in a parallel line to the point of his nose, shutting the left eye wholly and making the other wink with profound depression of the eyebrows and eyelids." The left hand is then brought into line much as is the more modern process.

The performance thus described by Rabelais is somewhat more elaborate than that in favor with the London street urchin of today, but was probably effective enough.—All the Year Round.

Time and Step.

"Sometimes," said an old soldier, "one sees the captain of a company marching proudly along, in time with the music, but out of step, the company right, the captain wrong. Distressing. But then I have seen a musician marching out of step to the music of his own band, and there is now and then a soldier who never really learns to keep step. The familiar order is, 'Left, left, left, left, the left foot down at the heavy tap of the drum.' "—New York Sun.

Thin as the Mist.

Scene, a town in the north on a very misty day.

Sandy McKay (coming out of a public house and meeting his minister face to face)—Losh, sir, it's an awful deceivin thing, this mist. D'ye ken (impressively), I wandered in there the noo, thinkin it was the grocer's?—London Globe.

The Canadian element forms two-thirds of the foreign population of Maine and New Hampshire, one-half of that of Vermont and one-third of that of Massachusetts.

Forming characters! Whose? Our own or others? Both. And in that momentous fact lie the peril and responsibility of our existence.—Elihu Burritt.

COLUMBUS OUTDONE.

Captain Andrews' Log Reads Like a Romance of the Sea.

In a little book entitled "Columbus Outdone" Captain William A. Andrews, who has acquired fame by crossing the Atlantic in small boats, tells of his adventures in the little 14 foot boat Sapolio, in which he crossed from Atlantic City to Palos, Spain, in 1892. The voyage occupied 69 days, including a stop at the Azores islands.

During all of his four voyages he never tasted warm food. His "stores" consisted mainly of canned beef, condensed milk, ship biscuits, beef extract and canned beans. Nearly all his meals were eaten while he had one hand on the boat's tiller.

Alone on the ocean for weeks at a time, without sighting a vessel, he sailed day after day. Columbus himself would scarcely have ventured on such a trip. America's discoverer had three good sized vessels, 150 men, the best equipments of the times, and in addition the blessing of the church. Captain Andrews had nothing but a coffin shaped boat 14 feet long, a little store of provisions, an old quadrant, a compass and a chart. But through all his dangers and lonely hours Captain Andrews' cheerfulness never deserted him.

"She looks like a coffin," said many who gazed at the little craft before she started. "So she does," replied her captain, with a grim smile, "and as I built her myself I will be my own undertaker if she sinks."

One week after leaving port, when the little old tub was leaking badly and death stared Captain Andrews in the face, this entry was made in the log:

"No mail today. Can't understand why my best girl don't drop me a line."

Another entry describes a bath the captain took and comments on the fact that "when you're traveling this way no bathing suit or bathtub is necessary."

One dark night a big sea nearly swamped the little craft, and this is how the log describes the event:

"I have just turned in. I have just turned out again. As soon as I closed my eyes a big sea came over and slapped me on the 'cocoanut.' As I bail her out I am singing that good old song so popular among the Hibernian gentry of the pick and shovel who reside near Harlem, New York: 'Work, ye terriers, work! Bail, ye terriers, bail!' "

Three weeks out this entry appears: "Sighted lots of little fishes swimming about my boat, waiting for a dolphin to come along. Then they will go away on the inside of the dolphin."

A novel way to keep boots from wearing out is thus mentioned in the log: "Have discovered a new way of keeping boots from wearing out. Don't put them on. Haven't had mine on for a week. They are wearing splendidly."

And so on goes the log, day after day, nearly every entry containing some attempt at humor, showing the fearlessness and buoyant disposition of the lone mariner.

Philosophy In the Salons.

The salons, which had been the centers of intellectual life since the days of Louis XIV, took the fever seriously. They were seized with a passion for philosophy, for philanthropy, for all the whims which were taking shape in the storm laden air of those days before the flood. They embraced the deism of Voltaire, the materialism of Diderot and D'Holbach, the pure atheism of Helvetius, or they dreamed with Rousseau and St. Pierre of a renovated humanity yielding to every impulse of nature, and by that means returning to its pristine innocence.

It is not only Walpole who grumbles that the French were no longer the same people; that they had lost their vivacity and were forever discussing. "They talk philosophy at balls," says Segur again, "and moral science in boudoirs." These people of quality, "who know everything without the trouble of learning," established clubs for the study of natural science. They attended the most learned discussions at the academies. One marquise goes to see dissections performed. Another dissects with her own hands.—Macmillan's Magazine.

Whittier's Way.

John G. Whittier was greatly loved by strangers, who not only called on him, but thriftily insisted on putting up with him all night. "Thee has no idea," said his sister, "how much time Greenleaf spends trying to lose these people in the streets. Sometimes he comes home and says: 'Well, sister, I had hard work to lose him, but I have lost him. But I can never lose a her. The women are more pertinacious than the men. Don't thee find them so, Maria?' "—San Francisco Argonaut.

Fate.

"It seems," sadly mused the postage stamp that had been bought at the corner drug store, "that I am driven from piller to post."—Cincinnati Tribune.

The Consumption of Baseballs.

In round numbers 1,500,000 baseballs are manufactured every year. It is naturally an exclusively American industry. The greater part of the number of balls turned out are of the cheaper grades that sell for from 5 cents up to 25 cents each. The cheap balls are made by machinery except the stitching of the seams, which is done by hand.

The better grades of the balls are made altogether by hand. The best balls, those used by the players of the League, contain a small core of rubber which forms the center. Yarn is wound tightly round the rubber core until the ball is of the proper size, when the cover is fitted on.

Most of the baseball bats that are used are made of ash. Loaded bats and bats with partly flattened surfaces are forbidden by the rules of the game.—New York Sun.

The Man He Wanted.

"I beg your pardon," said one man to another in a railroad train, "but I am the manager of a museum, and I have a vacancy now for a strong man."

"Well, what of it?"

"Why, sir, I saw you open the car window with no apparent effort, and I thought perhaps we could agree on the terms and you could begin your engagement immediately."—Detroit Free Press.

Two Lives Saved.

Mrs. Phoebe Thomas, of Junction City, Ill., was told by her doctors she had Consumption, and that there was no hope for her, but two bottles of Dr. King's New Discovery completely cured her, and she says it saved her life. Mr. Thos. Eggers, 139 Florida St. San Francisco, suffered from a dreadful cold, approaching Consumption, tried without result everything else then bought one bottle of Dr. King's New Discovery and in two weeks was cured. He is naturally thankful. It is such results, of which these are samples, that prove the wonderful efficacy of this medicine in Coughs and Colds. Free trial bottles at R. R. BELLAMY's Drug Store. Regular size 50c and $1.00. † accomplishes for everybody exactly what is claimed for it. One of the reasons for the great popularity of the Mustang Liniment is found in its universal applicability. Everybody needs such a medicine.

The Lumberman needs it in case of accident.

The Housewife needs it for general family use.

The Canaler needs it for his teams and his men.

The Mechanic needs it always on his work bench.

The Miner needs it in case of emergency.

The Pioneer needs it—can't get along without it.

The Farmer needs it in his house, his stable, and his stock yard.

The Steamboat man or the Boatman needs it in liberal supply afloat and ashore.

The Horse-fancier needs it—it is his best friend and safest reliance.

The Stock-grower needs it—it will save him thousands of dollars and a world of trouble.

The Railroad man needs it and will need it so long as his life is a round of accidents and dangers.

The Backwoodsman needs it. There is nothing like it as an antidote for the dangers to life, limb and comfort which surround the pioneer.

The Merchant needs it about his store among his employees. Accidents will happen, and when these come the Mustang Liniment is wanted at once.

Keep a Bottle in the House. 'Tis the best of economy.

Keep a Bottle in the Factory. Its immediate use in case of accident saves pain and loss of wages.

THE OLD FRIENDS.

The old friends, the old friends
We loved when we were young,
With sunshine on their faces
And music on their tongues!
The bees are in the almond flower,
The birds renew their strain,
But the old friends, once lost to us,
Can never come again.

The old friends, the old friends!
Their brow is lined with care;
They've furrows in the faded cheek
And silver in the hair,
But to me they are the old friends still,
In youth and bloom the same
As when we drove the flying ball
Or shouted in the game.

The old men, the old men,
How slow they creep along!
How naughtily we scoffed at them
In days when we were young!
Their prosing and their dozing,
Their prate of times gone by,
Their shiver like an aspen leaf
If but a breath went by.

But we, we are the old men now,
Our blood is faint and chill;
We cannot leap the mighty brook
Or climb the breakneck hill.
We maunder down the shortest cuts,
We rest on stick or stile,
And the young men, half ashamed to laugh,
Yet pass us with a smile.

But the young men, the young men,
Their strength is fair to see—
The straight back and the springy stride,
The eye as falcon free,
The shout above the frolic wind
As up the hill they go,
But though so high above us now
They soon shall be as low.

Oh, weary, weary drag the years
As life draws near the end,
And sadly, sadly fall the tears
For loss of love and friend.
But we'll not doubt there's good about
In all of human kind;
So here's a health before we go
To those we leave behind.

—Spectator.

THE ICONOCLAST.

Young Mr. Broughton was, unawares and gradually, in process of evolution from the journalist to the newspaper man. It took all sorts of rubs and surprises and facers and disillusions to form him. That morning he was hurrying through Printing House square on an assignment, when he noticed before him a woman carrying on her head a tray of plaster images and walking with the stately gait and even poise of the south Italian. She was small, brown. She wore a gown of blue cotton, a woolen shawl, plaided in olive and yellow, and a red kerchief on her head. These glaring colors, however, made her a picture. To observe her Broughton passed by her and then looked back.

She regarded him calmly. "Buy a lit' San Samuele says-a his oration, signor."

Broughton had no particular use for a praying Samuel, but he had various theories about our adopted citizens and might have acquired something in the plaster cast line if at that moment a broad shouldered fellow had not come and jostled the little woman so roughly that the tray was thrown from her head and went ruining to the sidewalk. It was the end of the world for that population of graven images. They fell in a heap of indistinguishable fragments, mingling their dust in a complete democracy of saints, politicians, lambs, the three graces, and even a model of a beautiful foot labeled Trilby. Little Samuel was past praying for, but he was no more thoroughly pulverized than the bust of Napoleon. Young Mr. Broughton felt stirring within him an essay on the frailty of mundane things. Then the air was torn with the lamentations of the woman.

"O Madonna!" Next she denounced the cause of the disaster, who was moving away. "Head of big, you are-a! Why-a you hit-a me? What I ever done at you-a? You break-a my image—I not eat-a more!" she rattled her finger nails along her front teeth to indicate the hunger which would be the consequence of the breaking of her stock in trade.

Meanwhile two bootblacks had seized the man by the elbows, and turning him around ran him back face to face with the woman. She stood wringing her hands and wailing. "What ruin! Poor-a me!"

The aggressor was evidently also an Italian.

"Soy!" one of the bootblacks said. "Youse has gotter reach down inter yer clothes an square up wid de dago loidy."

"He's a bloomin dago hisself," commented the other boy.

Broughton had been painfully composing a few phrases of such colloquial Italian as his Harvard studies of Dante had rendered possible to him, and now uttered them in a stiff and toneless accent. In effect, he said that it was necessary to pay the compatriot for that which was broken.

"I only got a ten cent-a, signor," said the offender, handing the coin to the woman. He was permitted to go in peace.

"Ten-a cent-a! Madonna mia! For so mooch image!" sobbed she.

So Broughton put $1 into his own hat and passed it around among the throng that had been attracted by the noise. When he gave the collection to the woman, she wiped her eyes, kissed his hands with many benedictions, and went her way.

Broughton's assignment had taken him in the direction of Mulberry bend. As he returned through that quarter he saw a hundred yards in front of him a woman with a tray of images on her head. He quickened his pace and soon was near her. It was the same Italian; she had replenished her tray with more saints and heroes and graces. "So it is," mused young Mr. Broughton—who still trailed clouds of the glory of journalism—"that in this world no one is indispensable. One perishes, another replaces him!"

Just then, swaggering around a corner, appeared the former breaker of images, and again, as if on purpose, he swung his arm rudely against the woman. As before, a crash, lamentations and a crowd. The dwellers of Mulberry bend, themselves well acquainted with poverty, gave of their few copper coins to her, who sat wailing among the ruins of her wares. They helped her to pick up such of the casts as were not irremediably broken and to replace them on the tray. This time Broughton did not stay to act as consoler. The aggressor had walked off rapidly, and the reporter followed him. After five minutes' chase they turned into an unspeakably dirty alley, where the Italian entered a doorway without noticing that any one pursued him. Broughton, having made sure that he should recognize the house again, hastened to the nearest police station and told the story.

"She was a quiet, decent little body," he said to the officer. "That great, hulking brute struck her on purpose the second time, even admitting that the first time might have been by accident."

Two policemen were detailed to accompany Mr. Broughton, who was known to the chief of the station, and he led them straight to the door where the Italian had entered. Up the dark and broken stairs they climbed. Broughton shrunk from contact with the slimy walls. It seemed to him that evil odors were depositing themselves there in a pestilential fungous growth. At last they emerged upon a landing. A child leaned over the baluster of the story above. Broughton tossed him a nickel.

"My little man, is there an Italian living in this house?"

The child picked up the coin and stared in silence.

"Say, kid, is dere a dago here?" one of the policemen translated.

The boy pointed with a thumb to a door at the left of the landing where the three men stood. Broughton felt the thrill of the righteous avenger. The malicious brute who had twice destroyed the wares of the poor little image vender would soon be sent to the island. And a good riddance for the community. One of the police opened the door, and they entered. They saw at one side of the room a long work bench, covered with plaster images. The iconoclast sat there, carefully mending a broken figure. The woman was leaning over his shoulder, laughing as they chatted in their own language.

"Eh, I always say it, Pietro, you have a holy hand at mending them! If not, we might lose by the game."

"I don't say, Marianna, that St. Samuel is better than new, but at least he will stick until he takes another tumble."

So that was their trick! A piece of real Neapolitan cunning. Broughton decided that he ought to have seen through it sooner. The woman caught sight of the visitors, and ran forward with hands clasped: "We ain't done-a nottin," she pleaded. "Dis our beez-a-ness. We all-a-right-a."

"Yes, you're all right," said Broughton impulsively. "It was my mistake. I owe you a dollar for it." And he laid a silver dollar on the work bench of the maker, breaker and mender of images. The Italian looked up with a real Neapolitan smile, radiant, many toothed, wide and irresponsible.

"Tell me about it," said the reporter.

"You not give-a me 'way, gent'men cops?"

"No. Go on."

"Look, it like-a dis. We not sell image. And I say, you hear-a me, Marianna, we get more money to break all! She carry de image. Den I come-a with grand-a force-a. Patatrac! All ruin-a! A-a-a-ar me! Dat, Marianna. A-ah, poor! Dat people! Somebody take-a money in hat. Don't-a cry, poor voman! After, I mend-a what-a can. After, I, Marianna, babies, all eat. See?"

All this time the wife stood with four rather clean and very beautiful children clinging to her skirts, and peeping shyly at the strangers. How could Broughton or any one else blame this happy family?

Indeed Broughton has never formulated his views upon the case, although he used to take social problems very seriously. Whenever he meets Pietro in the street they exchange a glance of intelligence. Sometimes the Neapolitan, by a quick gesture, indicates Marianna farther along the avenue.

And then Broughton, if he has time, assists at the —nth performance of the comedy of the iconoclast.—Elizabeth Pullen in St. Louis Globe-Democrat.

The French Capture of Malta.

Yes, it was a sanguine expedition "which, all unconscious of its danger, sailed away for Malta." The geographical situation of that island makes it in proper hands the citadel of the Mediterranean, the bulwark of Christendom against heathendom. But the military monks to whom it had been intrusted had grown corrupt and licentious. French agents had already been among them, and such was their timidity at the approach of Bonaparte that after the merest show of resistance to his demands the gates of an almost impregnable fortress were dishonorably opened to the French republic without a blow. Waiting only to garrison this easy conquest and to establish a French administration, Bonaparte hastened on, and the entire fleet in good condition anchored off Alexandria on June 30. With a few casualties the troops were landed, and the vessels were left to cruise along the shore and to destroy the English when they should appear.—Professor Sloane's "Life of Napoleon" in Century.

Waterproofing.

To make materials waterproof, mix together one pound of sugar of lead and one pound of alum, pounded separately, and pour over it 2 quarts of boiling water. Let stand for six hours and bottle for use. It should be applied with a sponge or soft brush until the material is thoroughly wet. It should then be ironed and hung up to dry.

Rain and Railway Tracks.

Locomotive engineers like to have the tracks watered occasionally by a good heavy rain, as they get glossy after a long period of dry weather and the wheels will not take hold, just as the knife grinder's wheel will not take hold unless it is kept wet.

AN AVENUE OF IDOLS.

A Double Row of Japanese Buddhas Which Cannot Be Counted.

Close to this interesting pool is the avenue of images, representing the Amida Buddha. The idols vary in size, but are similar in design. There are several hundred of them altogether, and they sit facing one another in two long rows. We asked the little Jap who brought us to the place how many of them there were. In an awed whisper he replied, "Nobody knows." Then he told us how impossible it was to count them. Each image was made unsightly by having numbers of little bits of paper stuck on to it and chewed bits of paper which had been spat at it. The object of this disfiguration we failed to discover, though our friend Hojo informed us they were put on by the young priests, a part of whose novitiate it was to attempt to count the Buddhas.

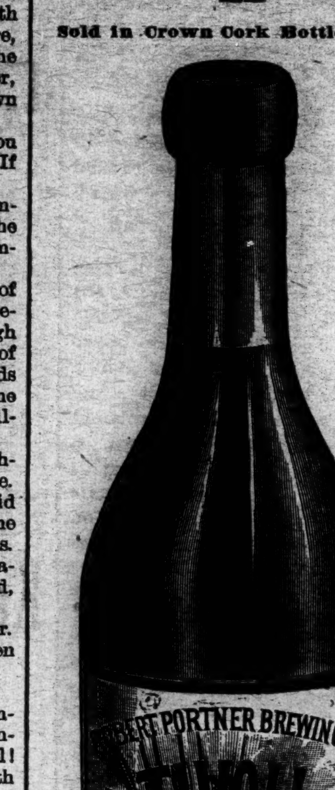

There is evidently something wrong with these idols, for no one has ever been able to reckon them up the same twice over, in spite of sticking a piece of paper to tick each one off. Of course two unsuperstitious Englishmen were not to be humbugged by native stories, so M. (my traveling companion) and I, thinking the whole thing ridiculous, decided to count the mysterious images. We started on co-operative lines, each taking a side of the avenue. Our efforts, however, were fruitless, for we had not numbered off more than a dozen each, before M. (whose eyes were not so good as they had once been) shouted across to me: "I say, I saw one of them on your side moving. I'm certain I did. They're uncanny. Let's give it up." This interruption of course upset all my calculations, but we soon came on the moving image, which turned out to be nothing more than one of the old Frenchmen, seated peacefully among the statues and looking in his white clothes for all the world like a jolly, fat, old Buddha.—Gentleman's Magazine.

4,000 Miles With a Wheelbarrow.

In 1878 Lyman Potter of New York state performed the prodigious task of pushing a common "paddy" wheelbarrow across the continent. He started from his home on Dane street, Albany, on the morning of April 10, 1878, and arrived in San Francisco on the afternoon of Oct. 5 of the same year, being almost exactly 178 days (five hours and three minutes over) in performing the wearisome feat. Potter was a shoemaker, and the trip was the result of a wager made by some friends who believed that such a trip would occupy at least 200 days. The wager was $1,000, but Potter made between three and five times that sum advertising for different parties along the route. The wheelbarrow was made specially for the use to which it was put and weighed but 75 pounds. The distance traveled by Potter was exactly 4,085¾ miles.—St. Louis Republic.

WILMINGTON, N. C.

FRIDAY MORNING, JULY 12, 1895

GRAIN AND PROVISIONS.

Fluctuations in Prices on the Chicago Board of Trade.

By Telegraph to the Morning Star.

CHICAGO, July 11.—Another portion of the loss sustained by wheat earlier in the week was regained to-day and that in face of a Government report that was construed bearishly by many in the trade. The selling side was espoused by the majority of traders at the opening. In the first few minutes more than a cent was deducted from prices as quoted at the close yesterday. Business then quieted for a while, but abont the beginning of the second hour corn began to assume a stronger tone and wheat advanced in sympathy with it and as the session approached a close further strength was communicated by reports of large export sales at Duluth, and by higher continental cables. The Cincinnati Price Current reported no essential change in the wheat crop conditions during the past week. The Daily Trades Bulletin figured a total yield, including both Spring and Winter wheat, of 405,779,000 bushels, the Government's average and per centages being taken as a computing basis. September wheat opened from 63⅜ to 64⅜c, sold between 64¼ and 67¼c, closing at 67⅛@67¼—1⅜c higher than yesterday. Cash wheat sold at steady prices, but closed nominally at 2c per bushel higher.

Corn—Things looked bad for corn prices at the openiag to day, but all obstacles were surmounted and again scored before the session was very old. September corn opened at 48c, sold between 44½ and 42⅝c, closing at 44⅝ to 44⅛c.—1 to 1½c. higher than yesterday. Cash corn was ½ to ⅜c. per bushel higher.

Oats—Ruled firm. Taking the Governments data a yield of 719,500,000 bushels is looked for. September closed ⅜c higher than yesterday. Cash oats were generally steady, little or no change being quotable in price.

Provisions—Hogs at the yards were 10c. higher this morning, affording some encouragement to holders of product. The recovery in wheat was incidentally a strengthening factor also. Offerings were very light early in the day and respectable advances were made along the line. Later in the day the professionals who has been notably fortunate in the late declines in grain and provisions sold liberally and a part of the advance was lost. The close was 10c. higher for September pork, September lard and September ribs however.

SPOTS AND FUTURES.

New York Sun's Review of the Cotton Market.

By Telegraph to the Morning Star.

NEW YORK, July 11.—The Sun says: Cotton rose twelve to thirteen points, and closed steady. The sales were 163,400 bales. Liverpool declined 1-32d on the spot, with sales of 8,000 bales. Futures declined two and a half points on the spot, but rallied, and closed steady at a net decline of one and a half to two points. In Manchester yarns moved slowly; cloths were in moderate demand. At Bombay the receipts were 11,000 bales, against 15,000 for the same week last year. New Orleans advanced eleven to twelve points. The port receipts were 907 bales against 146 this day last week, and 609 last year. Spot cotton here was steady at 7½c. for middling uplands, with sales of 740 bales for spinning and a direct shipment to Europe of 1,000 bales. Savannah advanced 1-16c. The Southern markets were generally quiet, steady and unchanged. The first bale of new Texas cotton arrived at Galveston to-day from San Diego, about ten days later than usual.

To-day's features: Heavy rains in Northeastern Texas, better advices from Liverpool than had been expected, the backward condition of the crop in many parts of the South, good buying for Wall street account, some buying by Liverpool, and also considerable local covering put up prices. At Abilene, Texas, there was a rainfall of 1.38 inches. Reports in regard to the dry goods trade were cheerful, the grain markets were advancing, the first bale of Texas cotton came to market about ten days later than usual, there was a pretty good business here and, in a word, most of the developments to day were favorable for the bulls.

SOUTHERN RAILWAY.

Not Negotiating for the Control of the Macon and Northern Road.

By Telegraph to the Morning Star.

NEW YORK, July 11.—Samuel Spencer, President of the Southtrn Railway Company, was seen to-day regarding the rumor that the Southern Railway was negotiating for the control of the Macon and Northern road. Mr. Spencer said he had heard the rumor and he also understood that the terms offered under plan for reorganization of the Georgia Central had been declined by the bond holders of the Macon and Northern road, but there was no foundation for the statement that the Southern Railway desired to control the Macon and Northern, or would take any steps in that disection. The Macon and Northern is not a natural or convenient connection of the Southern Railway. Its control by the Southern could have no other object than that of preventing the control by other interests and the Southern is not buying or seeking to control properties for such purposes. What it wants is business for its existing lines, and the Macon and Northern is not in a geographical position to furnish this.

FREE SILVER CONVENTION

At Washington, Ohio—Addresses by Prominent Men.

By Telegraph to the Morning Star.

WASHINGTON C. H., OHIO, July 11.—A convention of advocates of free coinage of silver was held here yesterday, the prominence of the speakers attracted an audience of thinking men. Hon. Mr. Delmar read a carefully prepared paper on the coinage of gold. Gen. A. J. Warner, Mr. R. S. Thompson, editor of the Springfield New Era, and Gen. J. S. Coxey delivered addresses.

CUBA'S REVOLUTION.

THE INSURGENTS GAIN ANOTHER VICTORY OVER SPANISH TROOPS.

Campos Issues an Order That All Rebels Captured Shall be Immediately Shot—The Insurgent General Issues a Manifesto—The Newly Elected Chief of the Cuban Republic.

By Telegraph to the Morning Star

JACKSONVILLE, FLA., July 11.—A cablegram to the Times-Union from Key West, Fla., says: Late advices to this city from Havana state that a battle was fought near Manzanillo on the 8rd between 500 fresh Spanish troops, commanded by Maj. Sanchez, and 200 insurgents under Rabi, in which the Spaniards were completely routed.

The son of Martinez Campos is reported very sick with yelloy fever in a hospital in Havana.

In the battle fought between Amador Guerra and Bocres, the Cuban leader was killed, being the only one lost by the insurgents. The Spanish troops were almost annihilated, only two officers and six soldiers escaping, having good horses. The report is confirmed that Martinez Campos has issued orders that all rebels captured shall be immediately shot.

The steam tug George W. Childs arrived in this port from Turtugas this morning, where she was sent by the quarantine authorities. Charles Hernandez reported acting purser on said tug during her cruise to Jamaica, arrived in this city Tuesday.

A call has been issued for a mass meeting at the San Carlos hall, for the purpose of raising $500,000 to carry on the Winter campaign.

Thomas Estrada Palma was elected a delegate at the meeting held in this city last night.

The order has caused much comment among the Spanish officers. The insurgents, when they make prisoners, simply take away their arms and amunition and send them back to the Spanish lines.

The following manifesto has been issued by Maximo Gomez:

"Encampment of the Cuban army, Nagassa, Puerto Principe, July 4th.

"To the Farmers and Owners of Cuban Plantations in this District.

"In view of the general interest of the war of the independence of Cuba, for which we are now fighting, we consider that the exports of fruits and other products, cattle, etc., to help the support of the Spanish Government, which we are fighting against, to be detrimental to our own interest, and the following order is issued to the whole Province:

"From this date all are prohibited from sending products to towns occupied by the enemy. Owners of sugar plantations are warned to stop all work. The plantations of those ignoring this order will be destroyed. Those parties who will go against this order show that their sympathy is with the Spanish authorities, and will be considered as traitors, and if captured will be treated as such.

"(Signed) MAXIMO GOMEZ,
"General-in-Chief."

"Attest: SALVADOR CISNEROS."

Among the passengers last night on the steamship Mascott, was Richardo Trujillo Y. Alma, who took an active part in the last revolution, being chief of staff of Maximo Gomez. He reports many bands going to the insurgents from Colon in the Province of Matanazas, and it is rumored in this city that he is the bearer of important messages.

NEW YORK, July 11.—A secret meeting of the Cuban patriotic party was held at the office of Editor Trujillo, of El Porvenir this afternoon. Mr. Trullijo said subsequently: "The newly elected chief magistrate of the Cuban republic will assume his functions in this city at noon to-morrow. Thos. Estrada Palma, the successor of Jose Marti to this highly important office, has been unanimously elected by the revolutionary societies in the United States, Mexico and the West Indies. His staff will be composed as follows: Chief Adviser General, Rafael Quesada; Secretary, Gonzales Quesada; Assistant Secretary, Manuel Cruz.

"Among the others who are to be attacked to the corps of managers of the party in this country are Manud Sanguili and Francisco J. Cisneros.

SENTENCED TO BE HANGED.

The Georgia Woman Who Paid Ten Dollars to Have Her Husband Killed.

By Telegraph to the Morning Star.

ATLANTA, July 11.—A special to the Constitution from Jeffersonville, Ga., States that Mrs. William Nobles and Gus Fambles were found guilty of murder to-day and sentenced to hang on August 16th. Mary Fambles was sentenced to life imprisonment. Debby Nobles was acquitted as was Dalton Joyner, a negro who was accused by Gus Fambles of having assisted him in the murder. Three other negroes who were arrested two weeks ago on suspicion were not indicted. The jury was out only a few minutes to-day.

The State has brought out every detail ot the murder from the beginning of the plot to the accomplishment and the burial of the body in the shallow grave. It was shown that the old man had rebuked his daughter, Debbie for immoral conduct. She was defended by the mother. From this the quarrel resulted. The mother and daughter turned upon the father. Each of them promised to give $10 to have the old man killed. It was proved that Mrs. Noble enticed her husband to the crib to look for a thief and when he stopped she struck him on the head and Fambles finished him.

Mrs. Nobles, who is sixty years old, took the verdict and sentence with the utmost indifference. Within a minute after the sentence had been pronounced she and her daughter Debbie were laughing at some trivial matter.

ATLANTIC CITY DISASTER

Cause of the Collapse of the Building—All of the Injured Improving Except One.

By Telegraph to the Morning Star.

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J., July 11.—A visit to the scene of the Baltic Avenue Casino accident this morning showed that one of the big pillars holding the floor had given away and the weight on the floor gradually pressed the other pillar sufficiently to weaken it, and the floor opened like a trap in the centre. The floor, however, slipped down gradually, and the disaster was thus not so serious as it would have been had it crashed through suddenly. The injured are all people who were the first to reach the floor. Mayor Stoye this morning condemned the building, and directed the building inspector to have it torn down, and also to make an investigation of the unfortunate affair. At the Elks' Grand Lodge session this morning an air of gloom pervaded the meeting room. A committee was appointed to look into the condition of the injured, and to render whatever assistance they deemed necessary. Those seriously hurt are improving, excepting Frederick Klaproth, the Camden musician, who was so fearfully crushed between the beams. He is still alive, but is in a critical condition.

The Marine Hospital Service Receives Advices of the Prevalence of Yellow Fever in Two of the Provinces of Cuba—Naval Affairs.

By Telegraph to the Morning Star.

WASHINGTON, June 11.—The Marine Hospital Service to-day received a full report from its representative in Cuba, Dr. Caminero, who, acting under instructions from the Department, has made an examination of all the leading ports in the provinces of Puerto Principe and Santiago de Cuba. In Puerto Principe, the Capital of the first named province, there are about five deaths daily from yellow fever. The military hospitals are crowded with cases, the disease being prevalent in the most malignant form. The city is located near the central part of Cuba, and has a population of 45,000. The province is the scene of much of the fighting between the Spanish troops and the insurgents, and the Marine Hospital authorities look with apprehension at the nature of the news.

At Santiago de Cuba, for the week ended June 29th, the deaths numbered twenty-eight, but the number of cases was not reported. The death rate, however, has increased in an alarming manner. Two deaths from the fever are reported from Gibra.

The Marine Hospital Service is informed that during the week ended June 15th, six cases and five deaths by cholera are reported from Osaka and Hiogo, Japan.

During the same period no cases were reported from either Yokohama or Nagasaki, where sporadic cases had previously been found.

Treasury receipts and expenditures have both been running heavy so far this month. The former have attained the aggregate of $10,979,000 or nearly $1,250,000 a day, Sundays and holidays excluded, and the expenditures foot up $23,818,000, making the deficits $12,838,000. Since July 1st, the general Treasury balance, according to the printed daily statement, has declined $3,000,000 standing at $191,518,000. From this there is to be deducted $6,527,616 for bonds and interest paid. The gold reserve has declined from $107,557,000 to $107,213,000. The amount of Treasury notes and United States notes redeemed in gold and reissued amount to $588,189.

It is not believed that the deficit will be very much increased for the month over the figures it has now reached and it may be reduced.

Captain Royal B. Bradford will go to Newton to-morrow, where he will take the light house tender Castus and lay off a 24 knot course in Long Island Sound, over which the torpedo boat Ericsson will be given practice spins preparatory to her final trial next month for acceptance by the Navy.

Cruiser Marblehead, which has been at Constadt, Russia, since the Kiel celebration, arrived at Stockholm to-day, where she will be joined by the flagship San Francisco which sailed from Cronstadt this morning. The gunboat Monbeacy reached the Taku forts below Tien Tsin to-day, and the cruiser Yorktown left Nagasaki for Shanghai. Yesterday the Naval Academy practice cruiser Bancroft arrived at Greenport, L. I., the dispatch boat Dolphin at Gloucester, Mass., the cruiser Michigan at Mackinac, and the Mohican at Seattle.

WASHINGTON, July 11.—Secretary Herbert received a cablegram last night from Commander Davis, of the cruiser Montgomery, which has been at Colon since July 1st announcing that the Nicaraguan canal commission had completed its examination of the Danama isthmus and that the ship would sail in a few hours for home via Key West.

The Marine Hospital is advised through the United States consul at Porto Rico that yellow fever is epidemic at that place.

Additional details concerning the fall of Pak Yong Hyo, Corean Minister of the Interior and practical dictator of the country, has been read at the State Department from Mr. Sill, the United States Minister at Seoul. The first information on the subject came yesterday in a cable from Denby, our Minister at Peking, which stated that Pak had fled from Seoul under charges of treason. Mr. Sill's account differs somewhat from this. He says that Pak, who is the King's nephew, was accused of treason and the trial resulted in a verdict of guilty of conspiracy. He was pronounced a traitor, and the case was referred to His Majesty, the King, for judgment. The minimum legal punishment for Pak's offense is banishment for life, but the King exercised his clemency and cut it down to ten years. The Imperial judgment was delivered on May 18th, and that evening Pak was taken out of Seoul to an island near Chemulpo, where he will pass the period of exile. Five "Commer men" also implicated in the conspiracy, were hanged the same night. Mr. Sill says there was no excitement over these troubles.

THE FARRALL MURDER.

Medical Experts on the Stand—The Evidence Will Probably All be in To-day.

By Telegraph to the Morning Star.

LA PLATA, MD., July 11.—A confusive mass of technical terms were hurled at the jurymen in the Farrall murder trial by the eminent chemists, toxicologists, matholigists and kindred specialists to-day. The testimony was calculated to stump the most knowing, and apparently the jury gave up trying to find the meaning of it. The attempts of the defence to prove that Mr. Farrall died from uræmic and not strychnine poisoning were not particularly successful. Two of their experts, Prof. Penniman and Dr. Mudd, were sadly confused by the cross-examination of Mr. Mitchell, whose argument was aimed at exposing what he wished to appear the incompetency of the expert witnesses.

The evidence will probably be all in by to-morrow night, but as the counsel will be allowed some time to prepare their arguments, the case will likely run over until next week.

A SAD AFFAIR.

Two Little Girls Killed by a Trolley Car in Cleveland, Ohio.

By Telegraph to the Morning Star.

CLEVELAND, OHIO, July 11.—Two little girls were ground to pieces under a motor on Loraine street this afternoon. They were Stella Schlaubecker, aged 8, and her cousin, Eleanor Grop, aged 7. They were crossing the street, and stopped on the car track to pick up something. The motorman was not looking ahead at the track, and without the slightest warning the car struck the little ones. Their bodies were so terribly mutilated that they were hardly recognizable. Grant Kerns, the motorman, was arrested, charged with criminal carelessness.

A Minneapolis dispatch says in the case of Harry Hayward, the Supreme Court this afternoon filed an order granting a further stay of execution from July 31, pending a decision on the appeal to be heard at the October term.

Clerks of the Late Legislature Indicted for Failure to Perform their Duties—A True Bill Found Against Mrs. Arrington for Libel.

By Telegraph to the Morning Star.

RALEIGH, N. C., July 11.—A sensation was created here this afternoon by the presentment by the grand jury of the Superior Court of S. P. Satterfield, principal clerk of the Lower House of the last Legislature, and J. U. Brown, enrolling clerk, for failure to do duty as officers in permitting the Act to prevent assignments to be enrolled which had never passed either branch of the Legisture.

Another sensation was caused by the finding of a true bill by the grand jury against Pattie D. B. Arrington, as editor, and Barnes Bros. as publishers of the paper called Criminal Docket, which makes a specialty of attacking some public men, the jury finding that it had maliciously libelled ex-Judge Spier Whitaker, of Raleigh. All the defendants were arrested and gave bond for their appearance. The cases will be tried at once.

AN UNFORTUNATE AFFAIR.

Attorney Jennys Accidentally Kills His Wife Near Asheville, N. C.

By Telegraph to the Morning Star.

ASHEVILLE, N. C., July 11.—A special to the Citizen from Canton says Will Wilkinson, of Asheville was driving with the wife of Attorney Jennys near her home, west of Murphy, late last night, when Jennys, who had driven from Murphy nearly home and hid by the road, fired at Wilkinson, but struck and killed his wife. Wilkinson passed Murphy and boarded the train, but was arrested and jailed at Bryson City. Jennys fled and has not been seen. Jennys' family came from New York, and has been living near Murphy for a few years.

RALEIGH NEWS BUDGET.

APPOINTMENT OF DIRECTORS FOR THE NORTH CAROLINA RAILROAD.

The Governor's Guard—Complaint About Wake County's Treasurer—First Load of Watermelons—Mayor Russ Vigorous in Prosecuting Worthless Characters—The Case Against the Water Works Company.

[Special Star Correspondence.]

RALEIGH, N. C., July 11.

Last night Col. W. B. Rodman, of Washington, and Col. A. L. Smith held an inspection of the Governor's Guard. They found the organization in good condition.

Mr. Haywood Knight was elected County Treasurer by the Populists, but being unable to give the bond required by the office, he farmed the office out to Mr. R. H. Riggsbee, of Durham county. Mr. Knight is never at the office and there is a great deal of complaint about the absence of Mr. Riggsbee. Postmaster Busbee says he has been debarred from making an important real estate deal for several days. Taxes are due on the property which the Treasurer alone can receive.

Two large stills were received at the Revenue office this morning which were seized by Brandy Collector R. H. Jones in Montgomery county for non-payment of taxes.

The first load of watermelons raised in this county were on the market here to-day.

A large meeting of the County Alliance took place to-day at Inwood, this county.

A firm in this city states that they will take 1000 bushels of blackberries. The berries are wanted for making wine.

When Mayor Russ was first inducted in office the request was made by the superintenbent of the workhouse to send over as many prisoners as possible. Now the cry comes to "hold up." Mayor Russ has been particularly vigorous in prosecuting worthless characters. Hardly a day passes but that he sends several offenders to the roads for thirty days.

The Governor has appointed the following directors of the North Carolina railroad for a term of one year: J. P. Allison, Concord; S. B. Alexander, Charlotte; W. C. Maxwell, Charlotte; Lee S. Overman, Salisbury; Chas. W. Johnson, Chapel Hill; Dr. V. E. Turner, Raleigh; B. S. Spruill, Louisburg; J. J. Young, Polenta; and Dr. C. P. McIver, Greensboro, the State proxy. The directors hold their annual meeting in Greensboro to-day.

Miss Ida Watson, daughter of Mr. T. D. Watson of the Revenue Department, died last night after a long illness from consumption.

Gov. Carr has returned from his farm in Edgecome.

The case against the Water Works Company is absorbing the attention of the people here. There is an innumerable number of witnesses and the case is progressing slowly. The State has not finished examining their witnesses. The evidence given in by the State is to the effect that the location is unhealthy and has only been so since the Water Works Company located its plant in the vicinity. The pumping of water into the city causes the water to recede from the banks of the pond, leaving standing water in marshy and low places which gives off an offensive odor. Many prominent physicians have stated that the presence of the pond causes malaria.

Mrs. Arrington states that the action of the grand jury in bringing true bills against her for libel is worth $1,000 to her. She says Spier Whitaker is the hit dog.

[Special Star Telegram.]

Mrs. Pattie D. B. Arrington and the Barnes Brothers were arrested this afternoon on capias instanter issued by order of Judge Timberlake. They were brought into court. Barnes Brothers were placed under one hundred dollars bond each. Mrs. Arrington went her own bond. The case will come up as soon as the water works case is finished.

The grand jury has made presentments against S. P. Shatterfield, chief clerk of the House, and Brown, enrolling clerk, for violating the duties of their respective positions by permitting the law known as the Assignment Act to be enrolled without ever having passed the House of Representatives. The action of the jury has created a sensation. The case will hardly come up for trial at this term of Court. The printed copies of the Revenue Act have the ratification of the Assembly attached to them. State Secretary Coke inquired of the Stewarts how this happened when the copy of the Revenue Act furnished them was not ratified. The Stewarts' reply is that they separated the Machinery and Revenue Acts in making up forms for convenience sake, and the ratification of the Assembly was attached, as they thought they were both one Act.

Treasurer Worth and Chief Clerk Denmark are both absent from the city, and no one at the Treasurer's office can sign checks. Inconvenience is caused numbers of people.
